Thank you!

Thank you for your continued support this week by following us on social media, posting comments, liking and sharing the articles, sending tips and suggestions, and whatnot. A big "thank you" goes to all our current and past donors/sponsors for keeping this Linux news website alive!

It's been a slow week for Linux news and releases, yet we had some great announcements this week starting with SUSE's announcement about forking RHEL to preserve choice in enterprise Linux, Thunderbird 115 with its brand-new Supernova UI, and Linux Mint 21.2 "Victoria" with its cool new features and enhancements.

On top of that, I tell you all about Star Labs' new mini Linux PC and the end of life for the Linux 6.3 kernel series, and wish Slackware Linux a happy 30th birthday.
